The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1, 12, 13 and 21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Plano et al ((5,803,967) in view of Takahiro (jp 03-075298).

The Plano et al reference teaches a method of growing a diamond structure note entire reference. On a substrate, a layer of diamond nucleation sites is prepared. The sites are orientated the same for the vapor growth, note figures. Then a layer of polycrystalline diamond is grown on the nucleation sites. The nucleation sites can be diamond, note examples. The orientation is (100) or (111) of the polycrystalline layer and nucleation sites. The sole difference between the instant claims and the prior art is nucleation sites being single crystal diamonds placed next to each other. However, the Takahiro reference teaches that large single crystal diamonds can be placed together to create a base for diamond growth, note translated abs. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify the Plano et al reference by the teachings of the Takahiro reference to use single crystal diamond base in order to ensure that the grown vapor layer of diamond has uniform orientation.

Claims 2, 3, 5 to 11, 15 to 20, 22, 23 and 25 to 28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Plano et al ((5,803,967) in view of Takahiro (jp 03-075298).

The Plano et al and Takahiro reference are relied on for the same reasons as stated, supra, and differ from the instant claims in the dimensions of the layers and orientations. However, in the absence of unexpected results, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to determine through routine experimentation the optimum, operable dimensions and orientations in the combined references in order to create a uniform layer of diamond improving the properties.

Response to Applicants' Argument's

Applicant's arguments filed March 27, 2007 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicants' argument concerning the combination of references has been considered and not deemed persuasive. The examiner admits in the rejection that the Plano reference does not teach the substrate that is claimed. However, the Takahiro reference clearly does teach the claimed substrate. The reference does teach using a plurality of monocrystal diamonds as a substrate. The diamonds are separate in the range that is claimed. The combination of references does in fact render the instant claims obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
